Welcome to Student 40acts!

We love how Jesus responded when He saw groups of people: “He had compassion on them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd” (Matthew 9:36). He didn’t just see crowds; He saw people with needs. He saw people who were ill, people who were lonely, people who were stressed, people who were tired – and people who needed hope. Everything in Jesus craved to help each of them, and He actively responded. People are His priority and so they should also be ours. He has given us the task of reaching His world by gossiping His gospel and by serving people. This 40acts student project planning guide is an opportunity to commit to serving, loving, befriending and sharing the message of hope that Easter brings this Lent.

Since 40acts first began in 2011, hundreds and thousands of churches, small groups and Christian Unions have taken part in the challenge, supporting one another as they explore daily challenges of serving and loving the lost generously together.

The purpose of this guide is simply to help you think a little more outwardly this Lent on your campus. We’ve gathered up some great ideas and suggestions to map out a plan of action for you and your CU to get the most from your student 40acts experience. If you’re unfamiliar with UCCF or Christian Unions you can find out all you need to know at www.uccf.org.uk/find-your-cu.

As well as this guide, you’ll find plenty of other free resources and downloads on both the UCCF and the 40acts websites, to help fuel your personal and community mission efforts this Lent. At www.40acts.org.uk there is also a wonderful series of studies and reflections based in the book of James to biblically undergird your activity. Don’t forget to check them out and subscribe to receiving them daily.

Here’s to a creative, generous, gospel gossiping active Lent!

The UCCF and 40acts team

P.S. We would love to hear what you’re getting up to so please keep in touch with us on social media using the hashtag #CU40acts

First Steps

To prep for this student 40acts 2018 you may want to get together a small crew from the Christian Union to take ownership of it. A week or so before Lent, invite the group for a small planning evening to get them excited for the challenge and to get your ideas flowing. We have suggested 40 acts for you to do over the course of Lent 2018, but feel free to edit them. Also, don't forget to try and work out how this complements your mission together as a CU to the rest of your university!

Pick a good time to share your ideas with the rest of the Christian Union. The guys from 40acts have found that the group experience works best if everyone has also signed up individually on www.40acts.org.uk so they receive daily thoughts and challenges directly.

Pick A Team

Doing the student 40acts together with other students from your Christian Union can be such a rewarding experience and can be done very informally, but for larger groups, whole Christian Unions, or for those with big ambitions to impact their campuses, working out some key roles may be useful!

1. Champion: Why not ask somebody who isn't already busy with lots of CU responsibilities to champion this adventure and lead your 40acts group? They will lead by example and be excellent at motivating and exciting people in the lead up to the student 40acts challenge, and be the encourager and energiser throughout Lent.
2. Facilitator: Someone who can help get practical things done especially for some of the bigger acts such as preparing venues, organising food, connecting with the Student Union and more! Depending on the nature of your group, you may have several people in this role.
3. Communicator: This person will keep everyone updated. They'll be the glue holding your student 40acts experience together and be your voice on social media to others on campus. They might work with the champion to provide encouraging updates throughout the challenge. For bigger initiatives, they might also share your experiences on social media (lots of photos and hashtags please!), or even with student press. Again, make sure they're connecting well with the rest of the CU.

Hold a planning evening

Once you've got your team organised, find a time to get everyone together as early as possible and start planning exactly what your student 40acts experience will look like. Each act is designed to be done in a day, but some will need a little more preparation and effort. This is particularly important if you've got big plans for campus projects alongside or with the Christian Union during Lent.

As you plan, discuss:

- How can you get your Christian Union on board?
- How can you connect well with your campus?
- Are there any public figures on campus you could involve to create more publicity?
- Could you do an interview on student radio or in the student newspaper about why you're doing it?

Some Additional Ideas to Try

Announce it before Lent in a CU meeting and see if anyone else wants to join in the fun.

- Encourage your Christian Union to pray about specific events.
- Use social media to create a buzz (create an online group specifically for 40acts on Facebook, use the hashtag, or start producing stories on Instagram).
- Ask your Christian Union to commit to the challenge, both as individuals and together as a CU. (It may be that with mission/events week going on they aren't able to commit to it fully.)
- Hold a launch event (if you have the time). This could be a special announcement in CU before Lent, or it could be a CU 'stunt' on Shrove Tuesday or Ash Wednesday (we've seen Christian Unions give out free pancakes at a 'Text-a-Pancake' event on campus – very effective!) or you could simply hold a massive pancake party for a load of friends to mark the occasion well.
- It's also worth thinking carefully about the whole of your community on campus. Is there any apparent need that you could serve directly for the seven weeks of Lent? Maybe alongside all the other acts you could commit to supporting the SU societies officer, volunteer to help the cleaning staff at the Student Union, or commit to "tea and toast" or to handing out water every club night of Lent with other students from the CU.

We have listed 40 different acts you could do through Lent for both individuals and for groups of students. Work out if you want to try and tackle all of them (go on...give it a go!) or do you want to focus on just the personal acts or maybe several one-off events? Try and work out in some detail what your timeline is going to be and scale of your project (this may also be affected by the size of your Christian Union).

Don't forget to discuss whether or not you need a budget for your student 40acts. If you do, first have a chat with the treasurer of the CU to see if they can help. Otherwise have a think about fundraising ideas.

Stay connected!

Ask questions and engage through social media with your CU on a daily basis about how they are getting on with the challenge. Along with the #CU40acts hashtag, why not make a hashtag specifically for your university?

Set up a Facebook page (not a group – this should be for everyone to see!) to create events and keep fellow students in the loop with your progress and needs they can meet. Make sure to invite 40acts, UCCF and loads of your CU to it to share the experience with you. Don't forget to tag in people from your student churches too!

If you use Snapchat we'd also love to see your snaps of what you're up to. Send them to uccf.cunews and then we can screenshot and share them!

ACT 1 - Target

This one is really easy. Think of someone you're genuinely thankful for who you haven't told. This could be a friend, family member or a member of university staff. Jump on your social media platform of choice and make a fuss of them publicly (and really mean it). Mention some of the things that make you thankful for them.

ACT 2 - Anon

"It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35). This verse is so true – think of the times where someone has thought of you and given you something as an expression of love and appreciation. Throughout the Bible we are shown that we do not earn love from others, therefore simply give a gift to someone you value and love who could really do with a kind act today! Why don't you buy a £5 gift card from your friend's favourite coffee shop and post it through their door (or actually post it to them!) with an encouraging anonymous message? Show them they have been thought of today!

ACT 3 - Deal

Food shopping can be really stressful as a student and some struggle to fit it into hectic uni lives. So today, why don't you offer to serve someone by picking up some shopping for a housemate or friend? Save them some time, help them out and show them some love. Don't forget to be bold and take any additional opportunities that come up to chat about why you're doing it and what your motivation is!

ACT 4 - Transport Friends

There is that frustrating space of time waiting for a train or a bus, or even when we're on public transport – we often find ourselves standing or sitting there doing very little, staring into space or checking Instagram again. What a great time to make friends! So, the fear-inducing act of kindness for today – make a friend before your train/bus arrives or before you get off. This can be a hard one to do – students around you heading to lectures or heading home might find it annoying. But sometimes it will work (from experience, sometimes really beautifully) and you'll be able to share some kind, generous words with a fellow traveller. Remember, you're only ever a hair's breadth away from talking about things of eternal significance with people. Oh, and make sure you've armed yourself with a copy of Uncover too!

ACT 5 - Storytime

Telling a good story is a wonderful, fun and stimulating experience. It can be relaxing, amusing or even very thought provoking for the listener. This is the act for today; read someone a story! You could offer to pop round to some friends from church and read to their kids before bed (take some milk and cookies, of course!). Or how about getting your flatmates together in the living room, getting them to close their eyes and you narrate something compelling? You might well move some people with your story. Either download something free or pop into a book shop and have a look in their bargain bin. You could try and grab an old classic or something written by one of the great Christian fiction authors (I'd recommend CS Lewis' Cosmic Trilogy).

ACT 6 - Chocolate Tuesday

This act should be so much fun! It is also a simple and effective way to connect with students across your campus or in your hall of residence. The act is simple – share chocolate with those you come into contact with today. Invite your CU to come together, either in one big 'chocolating flashmob' or in smaller groups, to leave anonymous chocolate bars everywhere with a post-it note or sticker attached with #CU40acts or maybe the title of your CU events week written on it. Saturate your campus with chocolate and watch the tweets roll in!

ACT 7 - Brand new

University can be one of the greatest opportunities to meet new people and make new friends. Why don't you make an effort today to get closer to an acquaintance or someone you have been meaning to spend some time with? It might be someone on your course, or that flatmate that keeps to themselves. Invite them to watch the football with you and your friends, or invite them out for a coffee with you. Allow people to get to know you better, and through that allow people to see Jesus and the difference He makes in your life.

ACT 8 - I can

Hopefully these acts are diverse and varied enough to contain something appealing to everyone. However, you'll likely be gifted in some way that we don't know about and we haven't necessarily used in these acts. So today, use one of the unique gifts God has blessed you with to make a generous impact; play someone some music, make an item of clothing, paint a picture, write a poem or make people laugh. Whatever it is that comes so naturally to you that hasn't been used so far, make the most of today to bless someone somehow with that gift!

ACT 9 - Get Hugging

This act can be quite a difficult (and potentially cringy!) one to do, but it's very memorable. Grab a few other CU friends or people in your team, put on your CU hoodies or events week t-shirts. Create a big sign with 'Free Hugs' written on it, and get out there and start offering some warm embraces! What you want to do is physically (and appropriately) demonstrate God's concern for your campus. Be prepared to explain your actions.

ACT 10 - Prompt

Wander to a local coffee shop (or even the library!) to do some work. When you're finished, why not write out something really thought provoking or inspirational on a piece of paper and leave it on the desk as you leave? You could write out something from a Christian thinker such as CS Lewis – something to get the brain ticking over. Don't forget to write your hashtag on there too...and share these with us on social media!

ACT 11 - Prayerful Media

Scrolling on our favourite social media pages and apps has become one of our go-to time fillers. Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat – collectively they take up so much of our attention and so many hours of our week. Today whilst you scroll, why don't you think about what you're reading and pray for what you see? Pray for the people who come up on your feeds, pray about what they share. Maybe 'reply' warmly and generously to them. Don't switch off and scroll; switch on and pray!

ACT 12 - Fling the doors

No, we don't want you to watch a marathon of Neighbours episodes...! Instead, if you don't already know them, get out of your dorm room, flat or house and go and introduce yourself to some of your neighbours (including the cleaner and security guard if you have them). Learn their names, find out something about them and try to start being more intentional with them. Make sure you share some truths about who you are too!

ACT 13 - Inside

Sadly there will be lots of people stuck in your local hospital over the Easter weekend. So why don't you and a couple of your student 40acts team head into your local hospital at visiting hours? Either encourage any student friends or acquaintances who might be there, or see if you can drop off some chocolate or magazines to some of the elderly.

ACT 14 - Homegrown

Sometimes being in the university world means you can end up being a bit cut off from the rest of society and what is happening around you locally and nationally. Why don't you pick up a newspaper today or go online and find out some local news? Use this as an opportunity to be praying for other people and other situations that are happening around you. Pray for people in positions of leadership who have decision-making power. Show some care for your local community that you have become a part of whilst being in uni.

ACT 15 - Impact

Does your CU have an outreach event or events week coming up in the next few weeks? Use this act to encourage people in your CU to make an impact on campus and to spread the word about it! Get as many CU members as you can playing a part. It might be good to agree on a time where most people can be present so you can create a real buzz. What about mid-morning break? Perhaps some can do a lecture shout-out? Maybe some can flyer and drop mini eggs in the libraries? And if you can, why not get some doing questionnaires or handing out flyers outside the Student Union with chocolate bunnies? Your university needs the message of hope that Easter brings, so come together today to make an impact ahead of this great gospel opportunity. Don't forget to share your activity with us using #CU40acts on social media!

ACT 16 - Indifferent Differences

After church why don't you invite someone to come and join you and your friends for lunch, or to hang out in the afternoon? It might be another student who you usually see by themselves, or someone you haven't yet got to know. Include them in your plans and make them feel welcome. The hope we have is for everyone, so let's take opportunities to draw people in, to eat well, laugh well and hopefully chat about Jesus. Someone might be eternally grateful for your invitation!

ACT 17 - Sticks and stones

Write a handful of messages on a pad of post-it notes such as: "Keep going! Hope you have a productive afternoon" or "Have a blessed day! Thinking of you". They can be as funny or sentimental as you like, but leave them as an encouragement to others. Place these messages where people will find them, such as on a library desk or next to a computer. A small message can go a long way and might help spur someone on as they settle down to work for the day. Don't forget your hashtag, but also think about how you can use your encouragements to point people to Jesus.

ACT 18 - Support

I love the call of Jeremiah 29 to seek the peace and prosperity of the community in which you've been placed. Inspired by this, we thought up this is a nice, easy act. Get together with a few other uni mates and head down to watch someone you know play uni sport. Make a good noise, be great fans. Encourage them and their fellow team mates before and after the match, and give them a couple of good shout-outs on social media with #CU40acts. Be involved in the wider community of your campus and in every way try to make it better.

ACT 19 - Vice-Chancellor

You might not know who your Vice-Chancellor is. They are normally the university's chief executive officer, with formal and wide-ranging responsibilities for the leadership and management of the university. There's a clear call in Scripture to honour and pray for our leaders. So today, buy a nice Easter-themed card, grab a cuppa and write a thank you message to your university's Vice-Chancellor. Thank them for all they do, tell them what you love and appreciate about the university, and maybe tell them about the positive impact the institution has had on you. When you're finished, pop it in the post. Don't forget to include your own address (you might get a reply!) and don't forget the hashtag, just in case!

ACT 20 - Out of the blue

Uni can be full of fun, work and adventure – but it can often be a time where we forget to stay in touch with our families that we have left back home. Why don't you write a postcard to send back home today, to a relative or a close friend? Share with them some of the things you have been up to and encourage them. Try and tell them a little about #CU40acts and why you're doing it. I'm sure it will brighten their day to hear from you!

ACT 21 - Persist

It is such a privilege to be able to pray for others and know that God listens and answers us. Spend some time today thinking about the people around you. Think about their needs and concerns. Pray for them. Commit to praying for them at breakfast, lunch and dinner today. Set a reminder on your phone and wherever you are lift people up to the Lord in prayer. Oh, and just before you head to bed tonight, why not let them know!

ACT 22 - Thank You

These two words can make a big difference to people throughout their day. We use these words often, but don't really think about it – or sometimes forget to say 'thank you' altogether. These words are just a short acknowledgement showing that you have witnessed something someone has done for you or for others and have appreciated it. Think about that today and make sure you say thank you to people around you! Say thank you to the person in the coffee shop who served your coffee. Say thank you to that librarian who always answers your queries politely. Say thank you to your lecturer as you leave their lecture today. Say thank you and mean it today, and pray that your Jesus-centred warmth will lead to more significant encounters!

ACT 23 - Meal Time

Here's an act for you to bless your whole house or flat. How many times a day do you pass your housemates in the corridor, kitchen or hallway of your house without really investing any time in each other? Today is all about spending time together. Invite each of your housemates or flatmates to eat a meal that you've prepared. It doesn't have to be fancy, but use the opportunity to catch up together. Leave phones, work and distractions at the door, spend an evening finding out how each other is doing and maybe even take the opportunity to pray for them. By the way, there are loads of good recipes kicking around online, especially on the BBC Good Food website. We're expecting some great foodie photos on Instagram for this one with #CU40acts!

ACT 24 - Statement

Most of these acts are practical that will hopefully lead to more significant conversations. So how about today aiming to share your testimony with someone new? Not just your subjective story about how you became a Christian, but also the objective truth of why you follow Jesus and what persuaded you to believe. If your CU has had an events week recently and the person you're talking to attended something or saw publicity, then maybe you can use that as a way into the conversation.

ACT 25 - Offer Your Time

Sometimes we just all need a little help from our friends. Are any of your friends on your course feeling worried or anxious about at the moment? Instead of letting them get on with it and work it out on their own, why don't you offer some of your time to help them? Offer to read through one of their essays or to listen while they think aloud some ideas. Even if you feel you can't help them with their actual work, you could offer them your company and work together in the same place for an hour or two. It might really help them out. If anything, it's just nice to have some company when you are finding things hard and it really displays a Christ-like heart for people!

ACT 26 - Hope-full Chocolate

Think about your flatmates, housemates and coursemates today. In the midst of studying for a degree, how many of them associate this time of year with the dread of exams, dissertations or deadlines to be completed before summer comes? As Christians, Easter is a time where we celebrate the hope of eternal life won for us by our generous, gracious and loving God! So today, why not think about how to share this hope with someone you know who is in the middle of deadline stress? Buy some chocolate and stick on them some wonderful truths of Scripture? Use today to share with your friends the hope you have in Jesus, and the reason the upcoming Easter holiday means so much to you!

ACT 27 - International Challenge

There will probably be huge numbers of international students on your campus. Some of them will have settled very happily at your institution; others may well be really lonely. Today's act is to try and better connect with one or two international acquaintances on your campus. Remember, God has a heart for the nations, not just the UK. So, you could ask if you could go out for some food together, ideally somewhere serving their home cuisine. Ask them to walk you through the meal, maybe even letting them order for you. Have fun, chat and get to know someone new!

ACT 28 - Planet

Spring is more than just in the air now. So, get yourself outside, message one or two course acquaintances and ask if they want to join you for a stress-free wander. Enjoy creation, grab a takeaway coffee and delight in getting to know someone a little better.

ACT 29 - Foodie

You'll probably be heading home for the Easter holiday soon. But before you go why don't you clear out your cupboards and donate what's appropriate to your local food bank? All food banks welcome donations and aim to use them to provide help to adults and children in crisis. At www.trusselltrust.org you can see what items to donate. Don't forget, foodbanks also accept essential non-food items such as toiletries and hygiene products, which help people in crisis to maintain dignity and feel human again. Before donating, don't forget to check with your local foodbank to see what supplies they are currently in need of!

ACT 30 - Collective

This is another act that might need a little more prep. Try and find someone – a fellow student or a university society – that is trying to raise some money for a useful or significant cause and give a few hours of your day today to try and help them out. At the very least, give them a boost on social media, but also try and get out on campus and give them a hand too. If you put your mind to it you could put on a more substantial fundraising event – a student art exhibition or a promise auction. Be a real force for good and help someone raise some money for a cause they're passionate about.

ACT 31 - Plan

This can be really fun (albeit a little terrifying!). Head to the cinema tonight. Try and pick a particularly stimulating movie that lots of people would enjoy. And then invite a really eclectic group of people to join you. Maybe try to invite people you know less well, or those in your halls of residence you know who are lonely or struggling. Be the glue bringing different people together for a night of friendship and fun! We want to see your selfies on social media with #CU40acts!

ACT 32 - Coffee Time

This one can take a little extra planning (although your CU might already be familiar with this kind of activity). Plan to set up a table with a hot water urn, get a great selection of coffee and tea (try to buy Fair Trade), and spend a couple of hours handing out drinks to passers-by and engaging in meaningful conversation with them. You can go the extra mile by giving out cake as well, decorating the table, creating banners, using a gazebo and handing out other freebies. Don't shy away from telling people about Jesus!

ACT 33 - Playlist

Okay, here's a quiet, creative one – everyone loves a good playlist, something to warm the heart and vocal chords. Today, why don't you have a go at creating a playlist (or several if you're at a loose end) for a few friends. Put some tracks on there to make them smile, something to get them singing and maybe even something to get them thinking. Then send it across to them for them to enjoy!

ACT 34 - Sabbatical Officers

You might want to think about getting your whole CU involved today. This act is all about making an impact on those influential people in your Student Union. How often do you think your sabbatical officers get a 'thank you' for all the ways they support and help the students and societies in your university? Get a team from the CU to write a personal 'thank you' note to each of these officers, and attach it to an Easter egg maybe with a Bible verse of your choice or a copy of Uncover. Step out to bless them today and show kindness where it might not be expected and give them the opportunity to more about Jesus too! This is definitely one for social media!

ACT 35 - Witness

This act is all about stepping out and sharing your faith. Could you make your CU main meeting seeker-friendly? Why not put on a special Easter meeting especially for those who want to explore more of what the Christian faith is about. It may even be a good opportunity to give people a taster before an upcoming mission event. Organise and plan the meeting; it could be as simple as decorating a room on campus, providing hot chocolate and puddings, and sharing testimonies. And in the meantime, send your CU out to hand out flyers in their university departments, libraries and the Student Union (make sure you have permission) and get people intrigued as to what your faith in Jesus is all about. Don't forget to share what you get up to using #CU40acts!

ACT 36 - Servant

Give one of your friends the opportunity to have their laundry done for them! Why don't you ask one of your housemates or friends if they need washing doing? Do it for them – wash, dry and fold. Return it to them ready to chat Jesus. Just make sure you don't leave a red sock in the white wash!

ACT 37 - Debrief

Think about some of the people in your church who have been a really big help to you as you have moved away to uni. Maybe there are a couple of people you would like to thank for being a source of support and encouragement to you. After church today why don't you grab them and offer to do something for them like cook a meal, babysit, mow the lawn or wash their car? Something simple to give back to the people who God has blessed you with whilst being at university!

ACT 38 - On Your Mark, Get Set, Bake!

It's Good Friday. It's a great day! So, why don't you head to the kitchen and bake something wonderful for one of your friends on your course who is finding it tough at the moment (or if you're back at home, something for mum or dad or your neighbours). It doesn't have to be to Mary Berry standard – I'm sure that however your baking turns out it will bring a smile to someone's face when they really might need it! As an extra idea, why not try something really adventurous like a Simnel cake (check out the significance of this cake online)!

ACT 39 - Pray for the Persecuted Church

It is so easy to forget how blessed we are to live in a country where we don't face physical and life-threatening persecution for our faith. Because of this, we can so easily forget that our brothers and sisters around the world are suffering right now for being a Christian. Spend some time today being concerned for them, find out about Christians in other countries, research some testimonies of people who have found faith in the most hostile places and pray with them. Pray for their protection – that God will be strengthening their faith and using their circumstances for the good of His kingdom. But don't stop there – if you have the time, why don't you write to a Christian in another country and share how together in Christ we are united and you are praying for them (one way you can do this is through this website www.opendoorsuk.org/act/letter).

ACT 40 - Easter!

To conclude 40acts, why don't you think about how you could celebrate Easter in a generous way? Maybe you could arrange to deliver Easter eggs to some of the international students left on campus over the Easter holiday. Think about attaching a copy of Uncover John along with an Easter card and an invitation to read it together later in Spring.

About UCCF: The Christian Unions

Our vision is to give every student in Great Britain an opportunity to hear and respond to the gospel of Jesus Christ. Christian Unions (CUs) are mission teams that operate at the heart of university and college campuses. They are led by students, resourced by Christian Union Staff Workers and supported by the local church. Together, we are reaching students for Jesus.
